THE Nugget says: "The Sunday evening lectures of the Rev. Mr. Talbot, of the Episcopal church, are highly spoken of as being fresh, fervent and eloquent." How long since the Rev. Mr. Talbot returned from Kansas? We were under the impression that the Rev. Endicott Peabody now fills the pulpit of the Episcopal church in Tombstone, however, we may be mistaken, and are open for conviction on this point.

A VERY plrasant social gathering took place last evening at the residence of Miss Hattle Jones, on Tough Nut street. Music and dancing together with elegant refreshments occupied the time and the attention of those present until an early hour this morning, when the guests departed for their respective homes, all feeling thoroughly satisfied with the night's enenjoyment.

GEORGE HEARST used to tell the following good story, which he said was good because there is so much human nature in it: Capt. Metcham, of Oregon, was one day traveling with a party of men when they were surprised and attacked by In dians. The captain was mounted on a rather docile, slow-going mule that did not at first rise equal to the emergen y, and his comrades, who were better mounted. ran away from him. The captain shouted after them with all his might, " Hold on there, hold on-we can lick hell out of 'em!" to which encouragement no attention was paid. Directly old muley caught a sniff and a sight of the Indians at the same time, when he started off at a furious pace that soon left the balance of the party far in the rear, when the captain looked back over his shoulder, shouting at the top of his voice, "Come on, boys, come on-there's a t-h o-u s-a-n-d of 'em!"

An action was commenced in the district court yesterday of more than ordinary interest. The name of the action is Patrick McMahon vs. John M. Collins. The suit is brought by plaintiff to compel Collins to deed him a certain interest in what was the Last Chance mine, in Turquois district, before its relocation on the 1st of January last. This is the mine, we understand, that was bonded yesterday for a large sum of money. If the statement of the case given our reporter is maintained in court, then the present owner will have to disgorge a share of the bonanza.

The version of the matter as reported is this: McMahon with Collins was the owner of the Last Chance mine, upon which little or no work had been done. For some reason or other it is alteged that McMahon was driven from the district and could not, therefore do his assessment work. On the first of January he returned to make a relocation of his interest, when he was again, through threats, obliged to leave his interest, which was relocated by his partfier Collins, who has since been working it with good results. This suit, as we understand it, is brought to compel the defendant to restore to McMahon his interest as it existed before the relocation. The chief point of interest to the public in this suit is, whether a partner in a mining location can relocate a claim in his own name, and thus disfranchise his co-owners of their prior interest. The decisions of the courts say not. The law there treats | business connected with the seizure of 600 mining locators as tenants in common, gallons of untaxed spirits. and no one of them can, by an act of this kind wrest his co-tenants' interest from them. We believe the same rule of law will hold good here, and particularly if it can be proven that that owner was prevented by force from maintaining his right of possession by doing the necessary work under the mining laws of Congress.

That Alleged Cure for Small-Pox. A mixture compounded of one grain of sulphate of zinc, one grain of digitalis, half a teaspoonful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of water has lately been declared to be an effectual cure for small-pox, and a paragraph to that effect has been widely published. A correspondent of the Milwaukee Republican writes that during a recent attack of smallpox he gave the supposed remedy a faithful trial, and derived not the smallest benefit from it. He adds, moreover, "In the town where I published at the first breaking out there. A druggist put it up and advertised it as ready on call. There were nearly fifty cases there afterward, a quarter of them fatal, and I understand the majority of them tried the 'unfailing-as-fate' cure. It has had recent wide publicity, but doubt whether any 'French medical academy ' has yet heard of it. As for its strength, take a drop of apple juice, a drop of turnip juice, mix with a taste of sorghum syrup, and stir the mixture in a pail of watertake some whenever you are thirsty. This will be as 'unfailing' as the other and is equally harmless. With such a terrible disease as the smallpox, credulous people may suffer atterly worthless cure.

THE New York Mail and Express pays the following handsome tribute to the eulogy of Blaine on the late President Garfield:

Now that the eulogy is delivered, and it stands out a pure, stately, noble, symmetrical and enduring monument, unmarred by the slightest partisan blemish, every American will rejoice that the estimate of Garfield which will be read by all the world, is so faithful to fact, so true to the life, so masterly in its careful delineations of character and so graphic in its terse and lucid generalizations. Each paragraph is a polished stone, which any friend of Garfield might gladly put among his relics. All its paragraphs, each in its place in the perfectly proportioned eulogy, make a monument that will outlive, by generations, any stone and mortar memorial that can be raised to the dearest memory cherished by American hearts.

International Rifle Match. At a meeting of the board of directors of the National Rifle Association held in New York on March 2, it was an ounced that the international rifle match, for which our riflemen have been preparing a team to send to England, would be shot not st Wimbledon but at Creedmore, as the Englishmen have decided to send a team here. They were unable to guarantee a return match in case our team went to England, and so they consented to take the initiative by sending a team here. Gen. Wingate first read a letter from Sir Henry Halford, in which this proposition was made. To this favorable reply was sent by cable. and in answer came the following from Sir Henry, dated March 1st:

"Council willing to send a team to Creedmoor this fall, upon terms already arranged."

The directors at once sent the following dispatch to Sir Henry: "Terms accepted. Match to be in September." It was decided to invite all the states to compete for the honor of having a representative in the American team, and to use all means to get up such a popular interest as will result in the production of a team worthy of America. The matter of selecting a suitable teamwas referred to the committee on international rifle match. The match will be shot according to the terms published when it was thought that the Americans would go to Wimbledon. The teams will consist of twelve men.
